

You, Me, and LD

Volume 1, Issue 2 February 17th, 2009

Prepared by: Robin C. Letendre, M.Ed.
Learning Disabilities Consultant
robroy94@myfairpoint.net

Teaching strategies can be used by any student regardless of ability. A good teaching strategy used correctly can make a huge impact on the success of the student as well as the success of the lesson.

ESOL and Learning Disabilities
Please click on the link below to access the article.

<http://tesl-ej.org/ej01/a.4.html>

My thoughts and ideas on article listed above.

- *abstract states it is a basic primer on learning disabilities
- ESL teaching in terms of two considerations: classroom behaviors generally manifested by people who have learning disabilities and common sense techniques that can be incorporated into classroom routines to vastly improve the classroom environment for people having learning disabilities.*
- *working definition of learning disability
- *working definition of dyslexia
- *4 categories of difficulty of learning difficulties
- *connection to ESOL students
- *multiple intelligences
- *right-brain/left-brain issues
- *examples of difficulties students might have in the classroom
- *15 strategies to use in the classroom to assist learners (can be used with ALL students)
- *great list of references at end of article

Please fill in responses directly into the idea box so that I may have feedback. I would like to compile a list of what people are interested in so that I might be of better service to you.

What do you teach?

What center do you teach out of?

How many years have you been teaching?

Do you have any specific interests in regards to lesson plan ideas, teaching strategies, types of disabilities?

Was there a specific reason you signed up for the newsletter?

Do you have any burning questions to ask?

Please let anyone you work with know that they can be added to the list at any time. This is going to be an ongoing work in progress.

Also, you can be removed from the list at any time.

Just contact robroy94@myfairpoint.net

If you would please give me an address or phone number that I may contact you if for some reason I cannot contact you by email, I would appreciate that.

My address is 6 Rita Avenue, Pelham, NH 03076

My phone number is 603-635-3379

Thanks.

Yesterday is history. Tomorrow is a mystery. Today is a gift. That is why they call it "present".

~Master Oogway, from "Kung Fu Panda"

Let us celebrate today and the gift of sharing our talents with one another.